/Who Am I?

- Jeremy Jones

Last Sunday we looked at Mark 8:27 – 30, and dug a little deeper into the question "Who do you say that I am?" In which Peter responds, "You are the Christ." We, then, explored what Peter actually understood, when he responded that way. From reading further we see that he was understanding "the Christ" not to be the "Suffering Servant" of Isaiah. Instead, "the Christ" was to be a warrior, king that who would restore Israel. Clearly, as we read throughout the Scripture that was not Jesus' purpose. He came to walk out the "Suffering Servant" (I would encourage you to go back and read Isaiah 52:13 – 53:12).

In light of that, I want to ask "who are you? What defines you?" If I asked anyone who really knew you, what would they say? A couple of weeks ago we watched Overcomer here at the church and they asked that very question. I provided below a couple of lines and some questions I would like you to answer. Answer them honestly, don't give superficial answers, even if the answers may be shocking. No one is going to read this, unless you decided to sit down with a friend and/or spouse and go over it. After you go over, pray together ask for God's guidance to help you in some of the things that seem hard.

- 1) Who am I?
- 2) What are 3 things that define me?
- 3) Who would I be if I those three things were taking away from me?
- 4) Who does the world (friends, co-workers, etc.) say I am?
- 5) Who do those close to me say that I am?
- 6) Does who I say I am, what I say I believe, what the world says I am and what those close to me match?
- 7) Who does Christ say that I am? [Ephesians 2 – is a good place to start; also, you can Google the question and check out the different sites]

Prayer: Lord, thank you for seeing me for who I really am. Thank you for loving me in spite of me and sacrificing Your Son that I may spend eternity with You. Thank you for forgiving my sins and freeing me from them and death. Thank you for calling me Your child. Help me to change those things that keep me from drawing closer to You. Help me to live a life that brings honor to You.
