Could it Be, Is it True?

- Jeremy S. Jones

Have you ever stopped and wondered is the Creation account of Genesis found anywhere else in the Bible? Is the Flood account, a story just for the Old Testament or does it have meaning in the New Testament? These questions will be answered as we draw near to begin a new study on Wednesday night. As our study of the Gospel of John draws begins to draw to a close, I want us to start thinking about these questions. Henry M. Morris, the father of Creationism, once said, "Although it is often misinterpreted, and more often ignored, there is no doctrine more important, for creation is the basis of all reality. That is why God placed it first in the Bible: 'In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth' (Genesis 1:1)" And he could not be more accurate. So, I encourage you to come and join us as we search out the answers to these questions. And as you think about these questions, I encourage you to write down some of your thoughts. Will you join us? The journey begins in April.....
